Executive Disability Champion message

Disability affects many people, directly and indirectly. Increasingly, disability is recognised as something that affects most people, to varying degrees and at different life stages.

The Strategy is an important component of DVA's ongoing commitment to improving employment outcomes for people with disability. DVA seeks to be an employer of choice for people with disability and seen as a leader in developing a dynamic and diverse workforce, that delivers inclusive policy and service delivery to our veteran communities and their families. DVA will embrace innovative actions and harness our knowledge to design and deliver services to the veteran community and their families that are accessible to everyone.

Through this strategy, our leaders will empower our workforce to be disability-confident and build an accessible, equitable, inclusive and safe workplace for people with disability.

I encourage everyone to embed the objectives of this strategy and be empowered to positively influence the culture and environment you work in each day.

Definitions

This strategy supports all staff with disability and the use of inclusive language to discuss disability. This strategy recognises the Australian Bureau of Statistics (ABS) definition of disability for reporting purposes.

The Australian Bureau of Statistics (ABS) definition of disability states that 'a person has a disability if they report they have a limitation, restriction or impairment, which has lasted, or is likely to last, for at least 6 months and restricts everyday activities'.

However the Disability Discrimination Act 1992 definition of disability will be utilised more broadly, in support of contemporary language within a social model of disability rather than a medical model.

The Disability Discrimination Act 1992 defines disability as:

- total or partial loss of the person's bodily or mental functions; or
- total or partial loss of a part of the body; or
- the presence in the body of organisms causing disease or illness; or

- the presence in the body of organisms capable of causing disease or illness; or
- the malfunction, malformation or disfigurement of a part of the person's body; or
- a disorder or malfunction that results in the person learning differently from a person without the disorder or malfunction; or
- a disorder, illness or disease that affects a person's thought processes, perception of reality, emotions or judgment or that results in disturbed behaviour;

and includes a disability that:

- presently exists; or
- previously existed but no longer exists; or
- may exist in the future (including because of a genetic predisposition to that disability); or
- is attributed to a person.

To avoid doubt, a disability that is otherwise covered by this definition includes behaviour that is a symptom or manifestation of the disability.

Introduction

DVA has a long and proud history of working with people with disability as both clients and staff. DVA seeks to be an empathic and empowering organisation that is purposeful in supporting inclusion and assisting clients and staff to achieve their goals.

DVA has an integrated workforce of Australian Public Service (APS) employees and contingent workers through labour hire arrangements. This strategy encompasses our integrated workforce.

The APS Disability Employment Strategy 2020–2025 has two focus areas:

- attract, recruit and retain more people with disability
- accessible and inclusive workplace cultures and environments.

The Australian Public Service Commission (APSC) has set a target of 7% employment of people with disability.

The Strategy defines the path that DVA will take to ensure we provide an equitable, accessible and safe workplace, while proactively planning for the future needs of our clients and staff.

DVA's foundational position 2021

DVA's 2020 APS Employee Census results reveal 8% of our workforce acknowledged a disability, which exceeds the APSC target of 7% of our workforce. The priority for this strategy will be to focus our resourcing on retaining our valuable staff, while building an accessible and inclusive workplace culture. This strategy will also focus on quality career development and organisational culture outcomes.

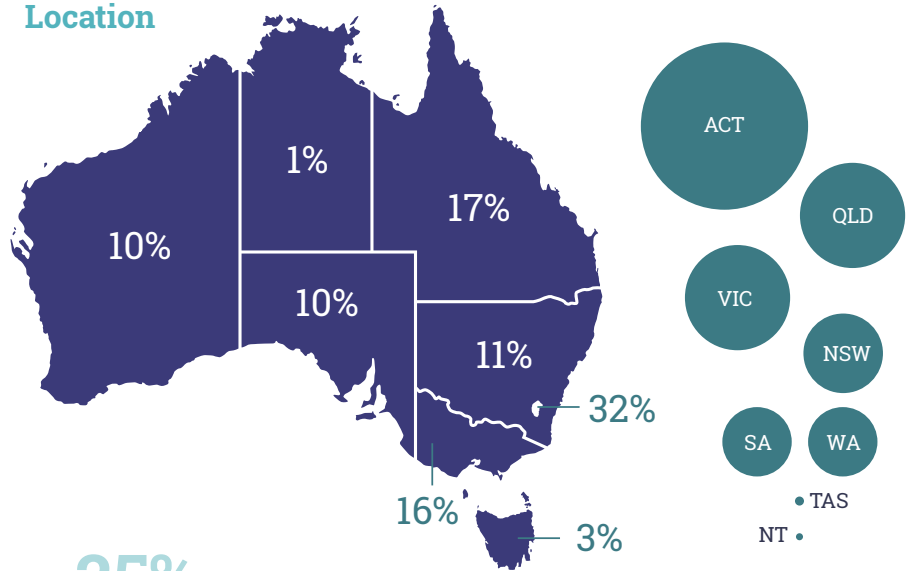

“ At DVA, I decided to be open about my ‘invisible’ disability. By being open with my manager and having conversations about how I was coping, when I needed to change my medication and was warned by the doctor that I could have negative side effects, I felt comfortable raising this at work. My manager supported me by offering reasonable adjustments, including being flexible around my work hours. I was able to monitor how I was reacting to my medication, while feeling confident that if I needed to change my work hours and start later in the day I would be supported to do so”.

Workforce profile of staff with disability

Workforce profile information was sourced from the 2020 APS Employee Census (October/November 2020). Figures presented on this page represent only the 8% of DVA staff who identified with disability in the 2020 APS Employee Census.

DVA's leadership is committed to supporting disability employment initiatives, by listening to our staff with lived experience, to ensure they are supported and receiving equitable opportunities in a safe, accessible and inclusive work environment.

This strategy seeks to understand and address barriers faced by staff with disability at DVA and improve our workplace culture and employment environment.

Although DVA has been successful in the attraction and recruitment of staff with disability, a substantial discrepancy exists between staff identifying openly in our HR system (2.7%) and staff identifying anonymously in the APS employee census (8%). DVA has an opportunity to understand the reticence or barriers to self-identification.

2.7% of DVA staff self-identified as a person with disability within our Human Resources Information System (Essentials) as at 31 March 2021.

I would recommend my agency as a good place to work.

My agency supports and actively promotes an inclusive workplace culture.

I receive the respect I deserve from my colleagues at work.

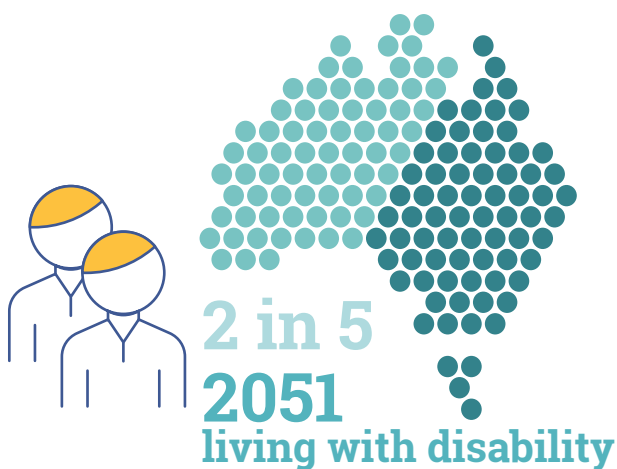

During the last 12 months and in the course of your employment, have you experienced discrimination on the basis of your background or a personal characteristic?

A future focused strategy

In Australia, the proportion of people reporting a disability increases with age. At DVA approximately 6% of staff are above the average DVA retirement age of 63, which means they will statistically identify in the category where 1 in 2 Australians in this age range report some form of disability.

DVA has a mature workforce with 58% of the current workforce aged 45 years or older. As we mature as an agency, there will be an increased likelihood that we will be supporting a larger percentage of staff with disability. It is essential that we remain engaged with our workforce to ensure we are proactive in planning for both existing staff with disability and staff who are likely to acquire disability over time.

By providing an accessible, inclusive and safe workplace, we can continue to engage a workforce which reflects the community in which we operate. This will result in an increased ability to understand the client and family experience, demonstrate empathy and provide a genuine commitment to assisting veterans and their families through the design of inclusive and flexible policies, programs and services.

Increasing career engagement for staff with disability will support reduced turnover, retaining expertise, providing continuity and increasing morale in the organisation. This perspective is drawn from the evidence base that employing staff with disability has substantial benefits for business and our clients.

For example, research by ManpowerGroup Australia shows staff retention levels amongst people with disability are up to 73% higher than staff without disability. Research by Deakin University and the Australian Safety Compensation Council suggests staff with disability tend to have lower absenteeism and incidence of workplace injury.

What is less measureable but equally important is the genuine and empathic opinions and perspectives staff with disability bring to the workplace. These perspectives, based on lived experience will build on DVA's ability to understand and support our veterans and their families.

The retention of an ageing workforce is an asset to DVA. We will continue to gain valuable insights from years of experience, which can be passed onto future generations.

How will the Strategy be implemented?

This Strategy will focus on four strategic focus areas relevant to disability employment outcomes:

Attract and recruit

Expand the range of employment opportunities for people with disability and remove barriers in our recruitment practices.

Support and value

Foster inclusive cultures and safe work environments, which celebrate and welcome diversity of thought.

Develop and uplift

Invest in developing the capability of staff with disability, while increasing the representation of staff with disability in senior roles.

Retain

Offer varied career development experiences in an accessible and flexible working environment.

Leadership commitment at every level of our Department, paired with dedicated roles such as Assistant Secretary People Services Branch, Disability Champion and Disability Lead Advocates will provide accountability for driving progress through successful implementation of strategic focus areas. Achievement of each strategic focus area will occur via the initiatives outlined in the supporting Implementation Plan.

“ I have found the DVA HR staff to be AMAZING in organising reasonable adjustments in the workplace.

They (DVA HR Staff) organised a specific equipment and software for me in a rapid time. I have felt very supported by them. ”

Accessibility

DVA will support lead agencies identified within the APS Disability Employment Strategy to implement key deliverables, to build accessible and inclusive workplace cultures and environments including:

- Audit of existing Australian Government owned and rented premises for their current levels of accessibility (led by the Department of Finance).
- Collaborate to share assistive technology and equipment across APS agencies and digital environments (Led by Department of Social Services and Digital Transformation Agency).
- Agencies must consider accessibility when procuring goods and services (Led by Department of Finance).

Nothing about us without us

A common and important message heard during consultation, in the development of the APS Disability Employment Strategy was: nothing about us, without us. To ensure feedback, insights and lived experiences are consistently and effectively applied to strategy implementation, a Strategy Reference Group will be formed. This Strategy Reference Group will be comprised of members who identify as a person with disability, offering a formal avenue for members with lived experience to advise on the decision points for each Strategy-led project.

Governance

DVA has identified reporting limitations and continues to engage in systems projects to enhance reporting output and aligned data analytics, to support strategy evaluation and evidence based decision making.

DVA will develop a comprehensive implementation plan and evaluation framework to support effective implementation of strategy deliverables. Where applicable, DVA will align with APS-wide initiatives within the APSC implementation roadmap.

Ensuring progress: evaluation and reporting

This strategy is a live document. A mid-term review will be conducted in 2023 to inform the approach for the remainder of this strategy, whether continuing as planned or piloting new initiatives.

The People Services Branch will coordinate:

Strategy progress reports to the People and Culture Committee, Strategy Reference Group, Disability Champion and Assistant Secretary People Services Branch.

Mandated reports will be sent to relevant external entities.

Public reporting will provide transparency in Strategy implementation and progress. DVA will be held to account by publicly reporting progress through:

- our Annual Report
- our annual State of the Service Report
- a mid-Strategy progress report to the APSC
- a final evaluation of the Strategy.

“ Support from my management to implement strategies to improve my work and assist in feeling better about my day to day role. ”

A DVA staff member's positive experience regarding being open about disability in the workplace and having a successful outcome.

2021–25 Implementation Plan

According to the Australian Network on Disability, disability confidence in the workplace refers to building capacity to support and promote the inclusion of people with disability within a workforce. This is achieved by having a greater understanding of what disability is in Australian society, the right language to use, the value of inclusive behaviour and attitudes, key concepts such as reasonable adjustments, inherent requirements and sharing information, ensuring barrier free recruitment and selection processes, understanding disclosure from the managers and employees perspective, awareness of legislative requirements and knowing where to find further information and assistance.

Timeframe to implement definitions:

- Short term: 6–12 months
- Medium term: 12–24 months
- Long term: 24–48 months

Attract and recruit

A sustained effort is required across DVA to improve employment outcomes and expand the range of employment opportunities for people with disability by building an inclusive and diverse workforce. DVA will focus on advancing the equitable inclusion of people with disability at each stage of the employment lifecycle, starting with the inclusive attraction and recruitment of people with disability at DVA.

How will we achieve this?	Timeframe to implement	Outcome sought
1. By acknowledging and understanding barriers to inclusive recruitment practices.	Short term	Foundational disability confidence training included in mandatory Corporate Capability offering. Within 6 months of training launch date, most DVA employees will have completed mandatory foundational disability confidence training. Evaluate impact of training on hiring manager’s ability to demonstrate disability confidence.
2. By supporting our hiring managers to access the skills and talents of people with disability, internally and externally to DVA, at all levels.	Long term	Undertake a pilot program to engage industry professionals to provide guidance on how to: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> • design and advertise job positions so that people with disability are encouraged to apply • ensure position descriptions focus on the fundamental requirements of the job. • broadcast vacancies internally to DVA. • broadcast vacancies externally utilising Disability Employment Services providers.

Support and value

DVA requires a culture which celebrates and welcomes diversity, where we promote how to recognise, value and support our staff. We are committed to developing a barrier-free and disability-confident workplace, where staff can bring their whole self to work and share their disability so that, where appropriate, arrangements can be made to maximise job satisfaction and engagement.
